Tells Southern Teachers It "Is a Business Institution With Missionary Spirit."

Louisville, Ky., November 29.—With two general sessions and several hours of department work, the Southern Educational Association to-night completed the second day of its annual convention. The convention will close to-moreow, when officers will be elected and other routine business concluded. One of the principal addresses at the general session to-day was delivered by W. E. Halbrook, of Choctaw. Ark. who spoke on "Training for Co-operative and Systematic Activities in the Rural Schools." He told of the difficulties in using the various element that constitute a rural school, and said it was best overcome by the employment of three methods—athletics, achool improvement work and literary soficiates. Watte cach method has its required. improvement work and literary sorie-ties. While each method has its pecu-liar advantage, said Mr. Halbrook, the
